Shari represents clients in all aspects of complex matrimonial and family law matters.

Shari's practice includes representing individuals in actions for divorce, child custody, paternity, child support, post-judgment modification and enforcement proceedings, and child protective and family offense actions, both on the trial and appellate level. She also works with clients to negotiate and draft prenuptial, postnuptial, and separation agreements.

Shari began her career at The Legal Aid Society in its Juvenile Rights Practice, where she represented children and young adults in various family law matters and developed extensive trial experience. She then worked at a boutique matrimonial law firm in New York City before joining Boies Schiller Flexner.
