Cyera represents plaintiffs and defendants in complex litigation across a broad range of practice areas, including antitrust, ESG compliance, and sexual misconduct investigations. Her current matters include defamation litigation and antitrust actions in the healthcare sector. Cyera also maintains a robust pro bono practice, advocating for individuals impacted by substandard housing conditions.

A graduate of Howard University School of Law, Cyera pursued opportunities to advance public interest work throughout her legal education. She served as a judicial intern for the Hon. John P. Howard III of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and completed internships with the NAACP Legal Defense Fund — representing communities still fighting for desegregation in primary schools — and the Environmental Defense Fund, where she focused on renewable energy litigation and clean air regulations.
