PROFILE

Alexia represents plaintiffs and defendants in complex litigation across a range of practice areas. Her clerkships with federal magistrate, district, and appellate judges give her a broad understanding of the federal judicial system and experience across civil, criminal, constitutional, and administrative law.

Before clerking, she worked at a civil litigation firm representing major insurance companies and national retailers, gaining practical experience in case strategy and client advocacy.

Admitted to practice in Florida and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit only; application to practice in D.C. pending; supervised by a member of the District of Columbia Bar.
